PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The interest among junior collectors seems to be picking up in the West Texas area. Nolan County Coin Club is trying to organize a junior club and I notice the attendance of juniors at the area clubs picking up considerably. I hope the entire state will follow suit and help every junior that shows any interest in numismatics.

Several have asked me why coin clubs in the state did not sponsor their juniors in the state association (TNA). This is certainly a worth while project for each club. If your club had only ten junior members, your sponsoring them would cost only $20.00. Just think of the good you would be doing for numismatics. WHY NOT TRY IT?

SILVER ITEM IN DEMAND

BY BRAD MILLS
Dallas Morning News

United States silver coins minted before 1965 continue in strong demand by dealers and speculators who are bidding against one another for large quantities at attractive prices above face value.

It is believed that 99½ per cent of all such 90 per cent silver composition coins have been removed from circulation, a fact that makes a search of bank rolls rather unprofitable and time-consuming. These silver coins have drifted into strong hands with the increased activity being based largely on the premise that silver bullion prices will advance.

The feverish demand is believed to have influenced the recent jump in silver prices by about 25 per cent. The tendency of just about everybody to throw aside the old silver coins as something special parallels the demise of the Buffalo nickel in the late 1950s and the Indian Head cents after 1930.

Chain letters relating to certain U.S. $1 Federal Reserve notes have been launched in sections of the country.

One of the letters assured the recipient he or she would receive more than 3,000 notes within one month, provided $1 was sent at once to the top person listed on a small number of names enclosed. The usual glowing promises are carried in all such letters, with the language used being a direct throw-back to the chain letters of the 1930s.

The Post Office has warned that any such schemes are against the law. One chain letter operator listed five names, all aliases of himself. Another promoter contacted only survivors of servicemen killed in Vietnam and promised recipients they would receive more than $1,000 if they would send $1 to the top name of five persons listed in a letter.

Special efforts are being made by the Treasury Department and various congressmen to assure at least one 1970 proof set for any person desiring these attractive coins.

In the last few years duplicate orders have so swamped the Assay Office that an early cut-off date was necessary. Many genuine collectors who ordered a bit late could not get the proof sets because of the limited capacity of the mint to produce them.

Rep. Leonor Sullivan, D-Mo., has taken a particular interest in a more equitable distribution of proof sets, with emphasis on throwing out orders placed by speculators who wish the special coins for resale at a profit. The maximum number of sets allowed for 1970 is five, compared with 20 permitted with the 1968-69 orders.

The Treasury has been reticent to make the provisions read a certain number "per person" rather than "per order", a kind of loophole that has permitted one person to send in a large number of orders for the maximum.

The rather sudden favor of nickel coins among collectors and speculators tends to emphasize the importance of the metallic content of hard money in every country. The realization that the pure nickel coins of Canada have a very significant weight value in the white metal has resulted in extensive hoarding in that country and shipment of large quantities to the U.S. Periodic scarcity of nickel as a metal in industry has kindled interest in coins of this type as a possible hedge against further inflation, while the numismatic value has also had some effect on the activity.

Before hoarders consider holding out the nickel 5c piece of this country they should consider the metallic content of this useful coin. It contains 75 per cent copper and 25 per cent nickel, although it tends toward the nickel color. Thus its metallic value certainly is not one to inspire hope for the immediate future. If this coin were made from pure nickel, as were many in Canada, it might be considered a fair hoarding medium. But as it now stands the bullion value is not attractive.

However, the one U.S. "Nickel", or 5c piece, that definitely has a metallic value far in excess of its face value is the so-called "war time" nickel coined from 1942 through 1945 in large quantities. At current silver prices this coin has a bullion value of almost 11 cents, a fact that has taken them completely out of general circulation. The wartime nickel was composed of 56 per cent copper, 35 per cent silver and nine per cent manganese. The silver content gave the coin a soft, white color.

When is a mint really a mint? And does the government of a nation have the right to limit the use of the word "mint" to plants coining money for official circulation as a medium of exchange? It is known that our Treasury Department has for a long time wished to have exclusive use of both the words "coin" and "mint," but there was always the question whether the words were too broad and figurative in meaning to claim them as the exclusive designation for U.S. mints and their normal output.

Two or three private "mints" have come into operation in this country during the past few years. These plants obstensibly strike medals, tokens, mementos and advertising "coins" used in merchandising contests. Some of these plants are equipped to strike official coins for foreign countries, and it is believed they are bidding for such business. They employ competent engravers and designers and do very good work.

After quite a stir in Washington it is reported that Treasury officials may be willing to tolerate use of the words "mint" and "coin," so long as the private manufacturers don't give the impression to the public they are government mints. The compromise seems to be based on a restriction of the use of these two words by the private plants to an extent that will prevent competition between them and our official mints. U.S. mints have for a long time coined money for various small nations that do not have mints of their own.

JUNIOR READIN' ROUNDUP

By MARY JANE WHYBORN
San Antonio, Texas
Youth Chairman

As I sat wondering what to write about in this month's column, it suddenly occurred to me that I am nearing the end of my first year as TNA youth chairman. On the whole, it has not been a very satisfying year. The lack of response from the juniors of TNA has been very disappointing; even those whom I personally asked to contact me never did so. I really had expected to hear from more than just one of you. I will say this in your defense — many of the adult members of TNA are not anymore responsive than you are.

I am still hopeful that, by the time this issue of "TNA NEWS" reaches you, I will have had a chance to talk with a good many of you during the TNA convention in Houston. I also hope that there will have been a large number of junior exhibits and among them, many prize winners.

I am now in the process of finalizing some plans for a junior program for the coming year, but I shall not go into it any further until all the details can be given to you at one time. In the meantime, perhaps you have a second hobby that you would like to tell us about. Many of us have interests other than coin collecting, and some of these are very interesting. Whatever you do, write to me about something; for I am fast running out of material for columns.

NEWS ROUNDUP – A.N.A.

By NORMA MATHER
Corpus Christi, Texas
A.N.A. Representative

Did you "tell it like it is" about "Coins - Heralds of a Great Nation" during National Coin Week? Have you told it like it was to your national chairman, Ed Rochette, in Colorado Springs? Whether you entered competition or not a report of the activities of your club during that week to promote our hobby is sincerely requested, you know.

Perusal of the Director's Report in the April issue of The Numismatist shows an unusually large number of membership applications with a goodly sprinkling from Texas. However, only ONE of these was sponsored by an ANA club representative. This is quite surprising since the club gets $1.00 credit for each application signed by the representative. Oh - can it be that the name of the club hasn't been printed on the application as required? The practice of asking the ANA club representative to sign every application for membership in the association may take some persistent effort to establish but it can be well worth that effort.

Interesting, isn't it, that less than two years after the association's first Numismatic Terms Dictionary came into being a second edition is being issued. This is a real compliment to today's hobbyist - he wants to know just what the terms mean when he sees or hears them and to be able to use them correctly himself.

The latest edition of the dictionary, compiled under the able chairmanship of our one woman governor, Virginia Culver, is two-thirds larger than the first but the price is just $1.00. Order yours from ANA, Box 2366, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80901 and keep up-to-date.

"The Chase is the Place" for the 79th anniversary convention of ANA in St. Louis August 18-22. Get that room reservation in "pronto" to be sure you get what you want.

When success turns a person's head he's facing failure.

A ton of talk weighs nothing unless it's backed up by action.

Theodore Roosevelt

DISTRICT FIVE:

Highlight of the regular meeting of Numismatics International of Dallas held in March at the Republic Savings and Loan building was the speaker for the evening, F. H. Wackwitz.

Subject of the address was "Certain of the Coinages of Portugal" which included the history of all of the official coinage issues of the Republic of Portugal since the time of King Ludvico I beginning with the year 1861. He passed among the membership 11 trays containing coins issued during the period mentioned, including certain coins minted for circulation for certain of the overseas provinces of Portugal.

A 15th tray contained various samples of the coinages issued by monarchies reigning prior to 1861. One of the trays held the relatively rare steel coin which was issued after the revolution of this country during 1918. —Dolores H. Davis Publicity.

During the business meeting on March 3 of Gateway Coin Club of San Antonio, plans were discussed for the coin show to be held on August 22-23 at the Rinada Inn. It will be the first coin show held in San Antonio since the 1968 T.N.A. convention and will be sponsored by Alamo and Gateway Coin Clubs. Four books were donated to Lackland Air Force Base Library and presented to Miss Phyllis Morgan librarian.

On March 17, Tom Bradley presented a program on U. S. type coins, 25c through $1.00, using a slide set furnished by T.N.A. Memorial Library. Following the program, a swap session was held.

A combined meeting was held March 31 with Gateway and Alamo clubs participating. Stanley Newding of the Federal Reserve Bank in San Antonio gave a talk on the Federal Reserve system and showed a movie "Money on the Move." The two clubs hold a joint meeting on the 14th Tuesday of any month.

—Troy H. Coan, Reporter

On March 10 J. Edson DeSousa of Jedson International in San Antonio spoke to Alamo Coin Club on "Coins and Their Link with Art and History." DeSousa also presented a copy of "Modern Copper Coins of the Muhammadan States" to the club for its library. It had been approximately a year since DeSousa last addressed the club.

The March 24 meeting featured a potluck dinner. A white elephant sale was also conducted. All items were donated by club members, and all money received from the sale of these items went into the club treasury. Troy Coan, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the committee's slate of officers for the 1970-71 club year. Nominations from the floor were all accepted. Election of officers will be at the April 28 meeting.

ARE ALL COIN COLLECTORS THE SAME?

By DON C. PALERMO,
Denton, Texas

To answer this question in respect to interest - YES! - we have something in common that we enjoy, and we enjoy discussing it with someone else who enjoys discussing it! In respect to what we collect and how we collect we begin to differ. Oh, we probably all collect something by date and mint - but I'm talking about each one of us, as an individual - your interests in collecting are not exactly the same as the person sitting beside you at a coin club meeting. I would like each member to make known to all members of his local club what he is collecting so the rest of the members can help him in locating coins. I'll tell you about our interest.

In January of 1963 we discovered a couple of cigar boxes that my wife's mother had stored away and practically forgotten in a storeroom at her home in East Texas. We bought a coin book and looked them all up and were amazed at the values. The next thing we did was find a coin shop and trade a 1955 half dollar for a 1955 "Bugs Bunny" half in uncirculated condition and paid $4.00 difference! We have never forgotten 1955 since that experience. We built 1955 sets of coins due to the fact that so many of them held a high value for so recent a mintage year.

Most collectors collect the routine, regular, popular, most common way - we chose a denomination (the most common of which is probably U.S. cents) and collect dates and mints and plug holes in folders.

But most of us, because of occupation, family or something different (from anyone else) that happened to us have a "side" interest in our collections - some collect coins with errors on them, some view type coins with particular emphasis, some collect oddities, and even some are able to afford gold coins. There are those collectors who collect "bargains" in coins in hopes of paying for their collections through small investment profits in selling them later on.

My wife got into Canadian coins about two years ago and I have a feeling she has gotten more bargains toward increased value than I have - I have a tendency to buy a coin when it is high and then having to keep it.

My "side collection" interest has still remained with the first coin we did business with - that 1955 half! I still pick up small foreign coins from grab boxes at coin shows that are dated 1955. Recently I discovered that the large silver coin my wife had been carrying around for years on a key chain from an uncirculated to a very circulated condition happens to be from Saudi Arabia and the date - you guessed it - 1955.

WOODEN NICKEL . . .

Corpus Christi Coin Club has marked its 12th annual show with a commorative wooden nickel, fourth in a series. The obverse carries the club's emblem representing the subtropical climate of "The Sparkling City by the Sea". The reverse indicates dates and place of the show.

Nickels may be ordered for 15c each, 2 for 25c, by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to P. O. Box 3025, Corpus Christi, Texas 78404.
